Holocaust Education Trust Ireland (HETI)

Introduction

Holocaust Education Trust Ireland (HETI) is an independent and non-profit charity. The organisation has a Board of volunteer Trustees, who are responsible for decisions concerning project management, fundraising and administration. In designing, facilitating and supporting educational and cultural programmes, HETI works in partnership with schools, colleges, third level and other centres of education, youth groups, intercultural bodies, and those working in the Arts. HETI cooperates closely with experts and international organisations promoting Holocaust education, awareness and remembrance. It welcomes submissions and input from those interested in supporting Holocaust education and in redressing discrimination and racism.

The Trust seeks funding from government departments, cultural bodies, corporate sponsors, religious bodies, philanthropic organisations, and private individuals. Further details are available on our website: www.hetireland.org

Message from the Chairperson

The Holocaust was unprecedented in history. It was the attempt by Nazi Germany to destroy the Jewish people of Europe, their history and their culture, and to murder other peoples because of their ethnicity, disability, sexual orientation, religious or political beliefs. Individuals, groups and governments made choices that legalised discrimination and allowed prejudice and hatred to flourish. This would ultimately justify and facilitate mass murder.

The fear and uncertainty which prevailed in 1930s Europe, nurtured the extremes which unleashed the cataclysmic disaster on the world that was the Holocaust. It was not something that emerged spontaneously, it was the result of seeds sown over many years. Those who perpetrated the Holocaust were, like their victims, ordinary men and women. Yet, given fertile ground for hatred, they became killers and the world became a dangerous place.

Today, in our fast-moving world, we are mindful of the surge in 'misinformation'. We are experiencing an increase in antisemitism and a prevalence of denial and distortion of the Holocaust. With few Holocaust survivors left to carry the burden of memory, it becomes even more important to educate generations now living.

Through its educational programmes, HETI seeks to promote understanding of current issues, seeking to challenge antisemitism and other forms of prejudice and intolerance. We teach about the dangers of bigotry, stereotyping and discrimination and we encourage respect and acceptance for all people.

Our vigilance and determination to fight hatred and fear wherever they emerge, will strengthen our resolve that the Holocaust cannot, and must not be repeated.

Dr. Thomas O'Dowd, Chairperson HETI.

Public awareness and Outreach education

Holocaust Memorial Day commemoration (HMD) takes place on the Sunday nearest to the 27th January every year. It is organized under the auspices of HETI in association with the Department of Justice and Equality and Dublin City Council. the ceremony cherishes the memory of all of the victims of the Holocaust and includes survivors' recollections, readings, music, the Scroll of names and candle-lighting. Six candles are lit for the six million Jews who perished in the Holocaust, as well as candles for all of the other victim groups. Six hundred people attend from all walks of Irish life and more than one hundred school pupils attend from all over Ireland, some of whom participate. Public lectures, exhibitions, and webinars are part of HETI Outreach.

Programmes for schools

Survivor testimony

As a result of the Covid-19 pandemic, HETI moved the 'Hearing a Holocaust Survivor Speak Programme' online. By holding the programme over Zoom, multiple schools are able to join and participate in the video calls. HETI provides advice and guidance to help schools and students prepare for the event. Every student receives a Holocaust Memorial Day commemorative booklet to take home and share with their families.

The Crocus Project is intended for young people aged ten years and older. HETI provides schools with yellow crocus bulbs to plant in memory of 1.5 million Jewish children and thousands of other children who were victims or Nazi atrocities. the yellow flowers recall the yellow Star of David that all Jews were forced to wear under Nazi rule. The crocuses bloom at the end of January or beginning of February. When people admire the flowers, the children can explain what they represent and what happened to the children, the project is aconduit for teaching young children about the Holocaust, prompting discussion about the dangers of discrimination and the importance of tolerance and respect for everyone.

The Mary Elmes Prize in Holocaust Studies

The Mary Elmes Prize in Holocaust Studies is for Transition Year students who are invited to complete a History Essay or an Artistic Response to the Holocaust (Art, Music or Literature) inspired by Mary Elmes and her story. In 2020 there were 25 entries across all disciplines and this number is expected to increase year on year. All prize winners receive a certificate, lapel pin, and book token. First prize winners also receive an engraved trophy. The Mary Elmes Prize in Holocaust Studies is run by HETI in association with the History Teachers' Association of Ireland (HTAI).

Teacher Education

Due to the COVID-19 restrictions, in-person teaching and learning went online. Lectures, webinars and special topic learning was integrated into online formats which proved very successful and elicited a strong uptake and response to the programmes.

The Certificate in Holocaust Education was suspended during the COVID-19 restrictions. It is intended that this programme and its associated study visits will be reinstated in 2022.

The Holocaust Narrative

Presented as an online webinar, this 2-hour CPD illustrated visual presentation gives an overview of the development of the Holocaust before, during and after the Second World War. This interdisciplinary programme is designed to give participants an understanding of the complexity of the Holocaust and how to teach about it in the classroom.

International Holocaust Remembrance Alliance (IHRA)

International Holocaust Remembrance Alliance (IHRA) Ireland became a full member of this international inter-governmental body in 2011, committing the Irish government to commemorating the Holocaust and teaching about it. Two members of Holocaust education trust Ireland are permanent members of the Irish delegation to this important organisation.
